

IHM Happenings in February

6th Grade Visits Museum of Discovery and Central High

Students from 6th grade visited the newly remodeled Museum of Discovery during their recent field trip on February 2nd. Students were able to experience all the new adventures the museum had to offer and take advantage of the hands on ability to create, experiment, and learn through the museum's unique interaction process. They were able to see how complex our bodies are in the Amazing You exhibit.

Did you ever wonder how much math is involved in our daily lives? The children could find out by stepping into Discovery Hall. Did you ever imagine what you would do if you were caught in an actual tornado? The students were able to hear and see an actual re-creation in the museum's "Tornado Alley" exhibit. The new Museum of Discovery was an exciting adventure for the parents and students alike.

The 6th grade class then headed a few miles to Central High School where they were able to experience the 1957 Crisis at Central High through the use of photographs, videos, and artifacts in the Central High's Museum and Visitor's Center. The children and parents were given a guided tour of the school grounds and took a walk along the sidewalks where angry crowds, soldiers, and nine African-American teenagers made history over 50 years ago. The students ended the day with the tour guide asking the question, "Do any of you students ever think you can't really do much to change things in the world? Well, if you ever begin to think like that remember the nine children who changed the world right here in Little Rock in 1957."
